FLEISCHMANN'S WON.

From Downsville in East Basket-ball of Year.

Fleischmanns, N. Y., Jan. 9.—The Downsville quintet played the high school boys here tonight, before a large crowd and lost 21-19. The game was fast throughout and only the speed of the high school boys enabled them to win.

The Downsville boys opened the game with a fine shot (thanks to Konold. A moment later Faulkner shot a goal from foul line, and from then on the crowd were on tip toe with excitement as the high school boys used their feetness against the weight and endurance of the Downsville five, "Livin'ine" Faulkner was the outstanding star of the game. At half time the score was 13-9, Fleischmanns leading.

The comic strip is divided into two panels. The left panel features a young boy with a bowler hat and a dark jacket, looking upwards. The text above him reads "Timmie Took a Chance." The right panel shows the same boy talking to a very tall, thin, and shaggy man. The boy's speech bubble says, "NO, JACK. I SWEAR, A MAN WHO GOES AND SLEEP LIKE TOMMY K. COME AND SEE ME WANT TO SEE YOU." The tall man's response is in a speech bubble that says, "I'LL NEVER I'LL NEVER AGAIN - OH."

USEFUL FOLDING WORK-CASE

Handy Article Closes Together Like Book and is Secured With Ribbon String.

A handy little work-case is shown here. It is designed to contain scissors, needles, buttons, etc. It folds together like a book, and is secured when closed with ribbon string, and might possibly find a place in the dressing-table drawer.

Useful Work-Case.

which a small pair of scissors can be slipped and upon either side of this pocket there are loops of narrow elastic for holding bodkins, large needles, etc.

The lower half of the right-hand side of the case forms a large pocket that is useful for holding various little articles, such as a card of buttons, darning wool, thimble, and possibly part of a reel of cotton wound upon a card.

In the center four leaves of fabric, cut into points at the edges, are sewn for the needles.

Some pretty little designs such as suggested in the right-hand sketch, can be worked upon the front of the case with the words "Scissors and Needles" beside it.

BLACK AND WHITE EFFECTS

Opposite to Dazzling Colors, English Writer Says, Are More Becoming to People Generally.

As a set-off against the dazzle season of gold and silver and jade and amethyst, and all the rainbow of the Russian ballet, special attention is being paid this winter to black and white effects. There is nothing, of course, says a writer in the Manchester Guardian, more becoming to people generally, and while it is still the custom in this country to discover a person who is wearing black, whether she is in mourning, yet black-and-white is gradually winning a place of its own. For one thing, of course, it sets off admirably the English complexion; for another, it is, in the long run, most economical.

These qualities have their defects too, for people who have learned to appreciate black-and-white also learn to take it far too much for granted and allow it easily to get monotonous and, and even, and to relate of a cold, both nation, exceedingly dirty. Crispness and cleanliness is as much a necessity of black-and-white as of other colors—indeed, much more so, for it is not the possibilities of richness which make it so attractive. Even the black silk with the thin, white stripes which are worn so much just at present should be frequently cleaned in order to keep the white fresh and smart looking.

Black suits which have very little suggestion of mourning about them are being made of thick, warm velvets and fur. Some of these have a band of black fox round the throat and sleeves. Worn with black silk stockings and shoes, and a close fit, the black-and-white looks, they are exceedingly becoming to all ages and complexions. But apart from the suits of which there is every variety in black and in black-and-white, the staple mode is at its best in the after-dinner coat-between dress.

FASHION HINTS

Even rubber frocks are treated with care.

The hooded frock of gingham keeps its original pattern.

Various self-decoration are still fashionable for coats and dresses.

A New York inventor has patented a child's coat with a dot.

Black frocks are more popular as backgrounds for brilliant brocade trim in skirts.

New York reports a few of the evening frocks recently shown have a very high collar.

Evening frocks with rows of pearls or jewels are made of French silk in brilliant colors.

Even evening frocks, appear

Beauty Too Juvenile Fashions.

When patients are prematurely harassed they may prove dangerous to health. There have been several cases of poisoning from poisons, the most recent being in London. The Journal of the American Medical Association says the green parts of potatoes contain a poison called solanine. It is a substance which is difficult to produce heat resistant. There is always a certain quantity of this poison in the tubers, but when these are stored away in dark places, where they are kept for a long time, the poison becomes more concentrated and the tubers are not so good to eat.

The Travelers' Pain.

All the early explorers in Madagascar spoke with enthusiasm of one tree in particular which was common and of such strange appearance that it formed quite a feature of many parts of the island. This afterward became well-known as the Travelers' palm, though it is not a palm at all. The leaves are spread out at the top of the trunk like a large open fan. They are bright green shining leaves and usually 12 feet long and the fan, being held stiff on a hollow stem some 20 feet high, forms a striking object. But the use which has given the tree its name lies in the quantity of pure water which is held in the large vessels at the base of the leaf-stalk. This can be tapped from beneath and a draft of sweetish water obtained at will. It is given a name in travelers' language as grove and then often its name.

Then moisten a soft cloth with the Danderine and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time. Instantly, yes, immediately, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will be a mass, so soft, lustrous, fluffy and easy to do up. All dust, dirt and excessive oil is removed.

Let Danderine put more life, color, vigor and brightness in your hair. This stimulating tonic will freshen your scalp, check dandruff and falling hair and help your hair to grow long, thick, strong and beautiful.

Mother! Be Watchful of a Growing Baby's Teeth

However neglectful you may have been of your own teeth, you owe it to your children to see that they take care of theirs. When epidemics like influenza and spinal meningitis come, children who have clean mouths are most likely to escape.

Preparations have been completed for the dance to be held in the armory on Wednesday evening, January 14, under the auspices of Company M, First Infantry, N. G. N. Y. No expense has been spared to make this affair one of the social successes of the season and a large crowd is expected to attend. "Curt" Shuter's full orchestra will furnish the music and as it will be the same orchestra which gave such universal satisfaction at the Charity Ball, those who are present will be given a musical treat, in addition to having a royal good time. Dancing will start at 8:30 o'clock and continue until 1 o'clock.

Jack of All Trades.

Although President Emeritus Elliot of Harvard university no longer takes an active part in the conduct of the institution he has been characterized as "master of Everything." A man of his acquaintance overheard the following conversation of two rural folk at Bar Harbor a few days ago:

"There goes Professor Elliot."

"What?"

"Professor Elliot of Harvard college."

"What's he professor of?"

"Well, I don't know but I guess he's professor of the whole darn thing."

Brazilian Church 100 Years Old.

Central church of Rio de Janeiro, which soon will celebrate its centenary, is said to have been the first Protestant church to be built in South America.

It was erected to provide a place of worship for the English community. Two generations were passed on the church, the exterior was to resemble a dwelling house and not a temple, and to be built on a hill, out of the prominence of the religious houses which now exist in Brazil.

Today there are two Anglican churches and 40 churches in South America.

Bergdoll started federal authorities for two years, during which time he traveled back and forth across the country in automobiles.

How to Stop Cold Feet.

Stick your feet in front of heating. Polish the metal well and make sure that it is in excellent shape. Then immerse it in the following solution: Sulphur of copper, 60 grams; olive oil, 60 grams; 70 per cent alcohol, 100 cubic centimeters; water, 100 cubic centimeters. Allow to dry thoroughly, then polish by rubbing with a clean cloth. Another way to keep feet warm is to put on the shoes red and then quack as a cold feet.

Socialists barred from New York Assembly

Here are the five Socialist Assemblymen barred from taking seats in the New York State Legislature. From left to right: Charles Solomon, second term; Louis Waldman, second term; Samuel A. Israel, second term; August Claessens, up for his third term. In the back is shown Samuel A. Israel. A storm of protest has been aroused throughout the country in the action of the New York State Assembly in barring the Socialist members. Many prominent men have expressed opinions denouncing the action.

Beef Antidote.

Beef each up the sector, which does not pass into their stomach but into an expansion of the esophagus. There it undergoes a partial chemical transformation, under the influence of a substance called invertase, which acts as a ferment. When the bee disgorges the honey into the wax cells it discharges a little invertase at the same time, and before closing the cell a very drop of cream from the bees wing is added, this to prevent fermentation.

"Then," says Smoller, "the bees in liquid condition before they are sealed." It is this drop of milk that preserves the honey for years.

Barons Prefer Cooked Food.

It is wonderful remarkable that, although a salmon in captivity will not eat raw meat unless extremely hungry, it will eat with avidity meat which has been cooked. Since the large expansion of sheep farming and the consequent restriction of their natural food supplies, barons in some parts have developed the habit of feeding hogs in the feeding season and feeding upon the carcasses of the hogs for the sake of the milk which these contain. This practice has led to the spread of a disease called "hog cholera" among the hogs. However, it is said that the disease is almost extinct and it is only when food is very scarce that Dachshunds Have Not Six Legs.

Who should all the ordinary mammals of war negotiations be permitted to four legs? The dachshund often looks as if it could do with another pair about half way along, and on does a somewhat peculiar but artificial creature. The purpose of an extra pair cannot be considered, however, for higher vertebrates are hereditarily fixed down to a number of two pairs of legs, and as they probably are to be considered as 12-legged beings, where the normal number of the more ready of the animals is 12.

Jiffy-Cup Free

An Aluminum Measuring Cup

Also Dessert Molds

Send us two trade-marks from Jiffy-Jell packages—the  circle and the  circle. We will mail you this half-pint cup. It is an exact cup for use with any recipe. And two fillings with water dissolve one package of Jiffy-Jell exactly right.

The flavors come in liquid form, in bottles. They are juices of crushed fruit concentrated.

It is real fruit, not mere flavor, that folks like and need.

People need fruit daily. Jiffy-Jell supplies it at a trifling cost, and you make it in an instant.

A delicious serving of rare fruit-flavored dessert costs you less than one small apple.

An inspiring reproduction of the marvelous painting of F. Louis Mora entitled "Thine The Glory" appears on the cover of the Red Cross News Letter of the Atlantic Division for the week of December 29. By no means all of the Red Cross workers here have seen it and the newspaper description has doubtless escaped many in the holiday rush.

Photographs of one thousand women workers for the Red Cross, were selected by divisional and chapter officials and these were elaborated by Major Mitchell, formerly of the general staff, into a single "type" portrait. This portrait contains the features of factory and shop girls as well as those of such prominent women as Mrs. Marshall, wife of the vice-president; Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. August Belmont and Mrs. Mary Roberts Rhinehart. This scientific portrait was the foundation for the painting by Mr. Mora—representing the ideal qualities of American womanhood as revealed in the war time emergency.

"The finished portrait represents the American soldier of the National Army, in whose face the averages of service men's features have been unified paying tribute to a figure in white who allegorically portrays the Red Cross worker at the close of her first international service in the great war. The Red Cross field uniforms were not reproduced in the painting by Mr. Mora because of the larger symbolical meaning of the simple, white robes.

An effective combination of colors decorate the background, where turquoise blue, violet and a brilliant blue sky are correlated about the head of the central figure in a manner which suggests the halo."

W. H. De B. Nelson, editor of the "International Studio," has made the following criticism of the picture, which now hangs in the national headquarters of the American Red Cross at Washington:

"It is a beautiful allegoric figure of haunting power and grace, a divinity in white raiment, humanity stamped upon its brow beneath the familiar symbol of the Red Cross.

"The great world's altar-stairs that slope from 'darkness unto God,' are near indeed in this great portrayal of America's share in the conflict. The artist has omitted all pictorial representation of strife except as implied by the lurid tones of the pigment that conjure up memories of devastation by shell and torch, while above a streak of clear blue sky portends peace and happiness.

"There is an upward movement toward fulfillment that is cleverly conveyed, giving action and vibrancy to the figures girdled by ever-rising clouds with sunlit edges."

FULTON AND MORAN OUT OF RUNNING

Fulton Handed Moran All He Had But Would Have No Business to Ring With Dempsey—Moran's Courage Marvelous.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. New York, Jan. 13.—Two shadows are missing from the well known trail of Jack Dempsey today.

One is the lanky shadow of Fred Fulton, the other the pudgy shade of Charles Francis Moran.

As a result of their eight-round bout at Newark, Fulton and Moran have eliminated each other as contenders for the heavyweight title and Jack Dempsey stands out as a very lonesome champion as far as American opponents are concerned.

Fulton's victory over Moran—for the Minnesota bean-pole easily outpointed the Pittsburgher—is at best a hollow one. Moran, in defeat, was the idol of the ringside fans and he put up the battle of his life though he took his worst beating.

Everything Fulton had in the way of a punch was stopped by Moran. The lanky giant hammered away at Sir Francis after the fashion of a stonecutter with a sledge hammer in both hands. But he could not knock out the old war horse from the Smoky City and he proved to the satisfaction of those who saw him that he has no business in the same ring with Jack Dempsey.

Six of the eight rounds went to Fulton. In the first round Moran rushed the Minnesota and won a draw. In the fourth Moran took the honors and all but had Fulton out. But he lacked the strength to put across the winning punch.

Jack Dempsey may now devote his entire attention to Georges Carpentier and the movies.

SCHERMERHORN TO QUIT BUSINESS

Store on Fair Street Leased by Burton Davis's Widow Who Will Conduct Restaurant There—Mr. Schermerhorn 50 Years a Tailor and 25 Years as Alderman and Supervisor.

After fifty years in active service as merchant tailor in this city, Charles A. Schermerhorn is to retire, which a number of older residents for whom he has been making clothes for from thirty to forty years, will regret.

Mr. Schermerhorn will retire in the early spring, having leased his store at 268 Fair street to Mrs. Grace Davis, who owns the Opera Lunch Room at 261 Fair street. Extensive improvements will be made to the Schermerhorn building, the lower floor to be lowered and the entire interior remodeled and made into a modern up-to-date restaurant. Mrs. Davis also owns and conducts the White Tile restaurant at 27 Railroad avenue, continuing both restaurants successfully since the death of her husband, Burton Davis, over a year ago. A report was current some time ago that Mr. Schermerhorn had leased the store to Mrs. Davis, but this was not a fact, as the former desired to close a half century in business.

Mr. Schermerhorn besides attending to business to the satisfaction of his trade has for over twenty-five years found time to look carefully after the interests of the taxpayers, first as an alderman, representing the First ward without compensation, and as supervisor since 1912. The lease was signed Monday.

When a Man's Sick.

It is when we are sick that we make the hardest call on our philosophy of life. It is the most difficult of mental tests to be assigned to physical suffering and incapacity. There have been cheerful sick men in history, like Alexander Pope, it is true, but they were and are few and far between. Julius Caesar, for instance, proved to be a very querulous man when he was sick.

FINE RED CROSS JOB FINISHED

That Kingston has many most loyal and efficient as well as quick Red Cross workers, ready to do any needed reconstruction work, has just been splendidly demonstrated. On December 4, last, Miss Katharine Millard, chairman of the garment work of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross, was in receipt of the chemise for Belgian girls, the same being cut out and ready to be made. These were distributed or mailed for and a great many Kingston women called for the garments, showing a spirit which the community may well be proud of. It was hoped that the garments could be returned to the Atlantic Division, New York city, by the 15th of January at the latest, but it was realized that with the intervention of the holidays this would be asking a good deal of our Kingston women. It wasn't the garments were all done, were beautifully made, too, and returned to Miss Millard last Saturday, January 16, and today they will be shipped to New York city. All of these garments were made in Kingston homes, none in the factories this time for the home people evidently wanted to show their loyalty to a Red Cross call.

With such a spirit prevalent in the community it is earnestly to be hoped that the Red Cross committee on reconstruction work will very soon make their contemplated visit to New York and learn just what phase of the peace time work is expected of this chapter and what the Atlantic Division is planning for the chapter. Furthermore there is considerable Red Cross work that could be done right in our own city. If that should prove pleasing and satisfactory to the New York headquarters.

AMENDMENT SUNDAY

To be Celebrated by Churches in This District.

The great hotels, restaurants, cabarets and other places will celebrate the enforcement of prohibition this week by the United States government.

There will also be another sort of celebration, nation-wide, on Sunday, the 18th, when Christian people of every creed will meet in their churches to thank God for one of the greatest moral victories the world has known.

By direction, therefore, of the Kingston Ministers' Association, as its president, I call upon all pastors of the city of Kingston and its environs to make suitable mention and observation of Amendment Sunday, January 18, 1932.

CHARLES G. ELLIS, President.

PRETTY GOWN OF CHARMOUSE

This attractive clinging gown of soft, mahogany charmeuse with a most effective heavily-beaded band trimming, will appeal to many. The design of the collar is interesting.

NEW USE FOR OSTRICH TIPS

Dainty Plumes Are Placed on Underwear as Trimming; Also Used for Corsage Bouquets.

Various and wonderful are the uses to which ostrich is put this year. Who would ever have thought of ostrich corsage bouquets? Or ostrich trimmed underwear? But both are fashionable this season. Evening frocks have fringes of uncured ostrich on tulle and décolletage, and one magnificent evening wrap of cerise brocade is lavishly trimmed with white ostrich fringe around the edge of a deep cape collar.

Small ostrich tips are used for corsage ornaments instead of flower clusters, and a smart restaurant dinner frock of black jetted net is made very chic with a bright blue ostrich tip—the curled ostrich kind—at the left of the wide black satin girdle. With no other color in the costume, the blue ostrich decoration stands out prominently.

So here is an opportunity to use that little bunch of pale pink or pale yellow ostrich tips that you have been cherishing for years against the time of a possible dressy hat, which you never quite got up courage to wear. Tuck the little bunch of ostrich feathers into the belt of your winter dance frock and be sure you are delightfully up to date.

You can also get all the laces you have been cherishing for now is the time of times to use them. Lace is lavishly used on this season's costumes; in yokes and other motifs for blouses of georgette, in bands and flounces on evening frocks, in panels and draperies and in whole bodices, if you have enough. Scraps of fine lace that are left over you can set into lingerie garments, surrounding the lace sections with flit insertions or very sheer machine embroidery, attached by hemstitching. Sometimes lace is used with stuffed net and everything is put together snugly with lines of hemstitching.

FOR HOME-MADE TABLE LINEN

Worn-Out Cloths May Be Made Into Napkins and Tray Cloths at Little Expense.

Old demand tablecloths that are worn around the edge of the table may be utilized by cutting a square yard from the center, hemstitching the hem and using it as a luncheon cloth. From the ends of the old cloth napkins of breakfast size may be cut and hemmed. If there is enough good, firm material left at each side, they may be turned into tray cloths. Unbleached linen luncheon sets are easily made at home. These linens are finished with hemstitching or a fine feather stitching. In some instances the round centerpiece with dollies to match are scalloped around the edges and finished with buttonhole stitching done in white, brown or blue linen flows. Amethyst or cotton flannel pads used under the dollies protect the table.

Direct From Paris.

Here is an idea which comes to you straight from Paris, and the most new things it really is not so difficult to do as the price of the suit might lead one to suppose. It is the idea which expands the price, for it is a very new one! Here it is, and it is not a bit too early to use it right off on that new suit of yours for the coming season. Instead of the usual embroidery, make tubes of the material of which your suit is made, and line them with crinoline. Cut the tubes into various lengths and, after the manner of sewing on beads, sew on the tubes into motifs of various designs. The effect is stunning.

That Little Touch of Black.

A little touch of black is always good on the gown, no matter what its color may be. It can be obtained by a neck piece of moire ribbon not over a half inch or inch wide. There may be a touch of colored embroidery on it or it is sometimes finished with a tiny silk tassel or a small bead one of black jet.

John Payne, Translator.

An author who appeals to the imagination is John Payne, hero of "The John Payne society," who shrank from the limelight of "Interviewing." Recognized as a true poet by Swinburne, he was one of the most skillful translators of the nineteenth century. We owe to him a version of Villon's poems which is a work of notable artistry, the first complete translation of the "Arabian Nights," the first complete verse rendering of Omar Khayyam's quatrains, to say nothing of translations of "The Decameron," etc. Thomas Wright, author of "The Life of John Payne," was for 12 years before Payne's death in 1916 his most intimate friend, and as during all that time he had in view the writing of Payne's life he lost few opportunities for obtaining at first hand the facts and opinions needed for his work.

Precept and Practice.

Many a man who talks about getting a broad, clear view of the beautiful world spends most of his days sitting behind an unwashed window.—Washington Star.

Cutting Quick Chills.

It is possible to break out chills of the worst sort by having for breakfast a cooling bowl of orange juice. From the edge of the glass and through the throat comes the heat of the orange juice and the heat of the body is kept at bay.
